002	I've seen other versions of this piece and really, they're just completeley different pieces altogether. I like this one best of all the ones I've seen. 003	Sounded great. But the alternate camera angle, the closeup from the side, made me dizzy and didn't contribute to my understanding of the piece. I would have stuck with the original camera angle. 007	To all the people saying this is shit and horrible, please just be quiet. Music does not have one definition, music has different definitions for different people. If you do not think this is music then fine. I respect your opinion. But you should really keep your opinions to yourseelf if they are not nice or complimentary. Thank you. 007-03	I make similar music while defecating arter eating a vindaloo curry and flushing it down with a couple of pints. Really people? Are you that braindead that you can't recognize shit when you see it?	Tomek Kruk	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCz1p8ltd1b_9jKYpDr05s4w	No	0	0	23.09.2017 21:08:45
007-04	Tomek Kruk sure you do. Now, feel free to post a video of the results  What's REALLY braindead is the amount of sheeple who heap hate on things like this, 'you're all being ripped off, morons' etc and then go off and listen to recycled generic chord progressions - which anybody could learn to put together - made without a single inventive or creative thought and ENTIRELY for profit! Views like yours just don't hold up, if Steve wanted to rip people off he'd have been better off writing the kind of music people in general actually like	ollimoore	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCP43Fj_FS0wguqIF8MkYXfQ	No	0	0	12.12.2017 19:25:29
007-05	It's not hate my friend. It's a fact. Hanging 4 dangling microphones and recording weird noises that it makes ain't music and it's definetly not art. It's something that a smart person (or a group of people) can sell to a bunch of educated morons, which is an art in itself I admit.	Tomek Kruk	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCz1p8ltd1b_9jKYpDr05s4w	No	0	0	12.12.2017 19:53:03
007-06	Tomek Kruk that's your opinion. It's not a fact. You don't get to define things for everyone else.  Sell? How much money do you think he actually made out of this? Compare that with the income of any mainstream musician.	ollimoore	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCP43Fj_FS0wguqIF8MkYXfQ	No	0	1	12.12.2017 21:28:32
007-07	Well, this is NOT music. And a mainstream musician, belive it or not, needs to put some effort in hismusic, while this is just 4 mics dangling from the ceiling. It's a fact and yes, i get to define it. Someone has to - if you're too stupid to see it (or to ashamed and stubborn to admit that someone might have sold you crap) ain't my problem, but maybe someone else is gonna read it.	Tomek Kruk	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCz1p8ltd1b_9jKYpDr05s4w	No	0	0	13.12.2017 04:47:38
007-08	Tomek Kruk no...this is still your personal taste speaking. Look around YouTube. There are people saying things like that about every single genre.  Your musical preferences are irrelevant, and so are mine. For you to be correct, it's STEVE REICH who would have to have seen no artistic merit in this, and in the absence of mind reading technology you LITERALLY CANNOT see that	ollimoore	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCP43Fj_FS0wguqIF8MkYXfQ	No	0	0	13.12.2017 08:00:18

007-09	It's not about proving anything. It just takes more that a few dangling mics making sounds at random to make music. I could for example flush the toilet repeatedly and record it and it would be of the same artistic value as this microphone quartetto. The only art is convincing people that it actually is proper music. The fact that mr Reich says that something is or is not art or music, doesn't make it true. Following your logic, everything i 'create' can be considered art just because i say so, which is a load of bollocks.	Tomek Kruk	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCz1p8ltd1b_9jYpDr0Ss4w	No	0	1	13.12.2017 14:52:06
007-10	A fact without a shred of evidence isn't a fact. It's a personal view, or a theory. I don't blame you for saying "it's not about proving anything" though, because quite simply you cannot and will not win this argument using ACTUAL facts, none of which support your view.  So having realised this fatal flaw in your argument, you now fight back with logic. Fine by me, my viewpoint is one hundred percent logical; and unlike yours, not subject to anybody's preferences - including my own.  One of the reasons that no amount of argument on your part will bring me over to your point of view is that I know it's possible for somebody to be genuinely fascinated by things which others would consider banal, uninteresting, unpleasant etc because I AM one of those people (can't say I have some kind of fixation on the sound of flushing toilets though) I'm not trying to use that as evidence as I'm well aware that you won't believe me or will come up with some convoluted reasoning as to why that could be the case. At least you might be able to understand my perspective and how drastically it differs from yours.  Recording yourself flushing a toilet repeatedly is hardly comparable to setting up a scenario wherein rhythm can be clearly observed without direct human input, but even so if an open minded (this counts you out) person was to become somehow enthralled with the sound of their toilet being flushed and decided to record it, that could most certainly be art. Of course, it would be impossible to know whether they were genuine or not, so only the stupid would immediately consider it a masterwork of some kind without themselves being able to see the same merits the 'artist' saw. However, what's equally stupid is to assume that not being able to	ollimore	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCP43Fj_FS0wguqfF8MkYxfQ	No	0	0	13.12.2017 18:31:46

007-13	Yea coz people everywhere get paid fairly... how bout if you found real music instead of the 4 chord mainstream money making shit that you listen to... you might actually think that these are just annoying sounds... can you listen to an album of this? coz there are real musicians out there making amazing music NOT for profit... but hey if you prefer "Mic and the Danglers" yes i named the band... then i guess no point arguing.. The Vindaloo shit comment made more sense than you	Saji Rose	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCW3XiOIHXjrSliRzZC3Kuwu	No	0	0	07.08.2018 01:36:16
007-14	@Saji Rose I think this piece of music is more an idea to experience than an actual song or something else. I probably won't listen to it again, but I had an experience. If you didn't like it and want people to know you didn't like it, leave a comment, don't be too mean, but don't pretend you're the one who knows what's music and what's not. If someone said the recording of your toilet repeatedly flushing sounds like music to him, then you have created music for that person. But there lots of people out there saying rap isn't music. It's very subjective. 007-18	People bothered by other people saying this is/isn't music means nothing to anyone. If anything I wasted my time because I didn't pay attention to the video while reading your comments, and now I have to rewind. If not that, I could have at least watched another video. You all do realise that this argument came to be because this video is categorized as 'music' and some people don't like that? If you want to leave a comment saying this isn't music, go ahead. If you want to explain why this is still considered music, leave a reply. 008	I see a lot of nay-sayers, and all I want to say is the idea was from-19 bloody-68. Call it what you want, but there is at least genuine novelty to be had here. The arbitrary universal laws of motion, the phase incoherence, the one-shot chaotic element... Its more stage art than music, but sheesh, in the meantime all we're fed are samples of the late n' greats under obvious 2/4 phrases marred by forced rhyme. I think I'd rather listen to this (done infinite times with varying distances and pitches through the speakers ect) than the radio. If all I get anyway is soulless, I'd rather hear an interpretation of the universe. PS, at least Reich didn't try to copyright silence, lol. 008-2	I think this doesn't have soul. This snobby "endless experimentation" that got kickstarted in the late 19th century doesn't have any more soul than the modern music business does. Steve Reich's music is designed to give an impressive or intrigued emotion, but it doesn't last. The art itself doesn't actually have any substantial meaning from Reich's part. He just did it because endless experimentation is art. There's no emotion or soul put into this, even if you can think of countless of descriptions after the fact, that doesn't matter anymore. I'll take minimalism and the ability of an artist to limit themselves over this pretentious snobbery any day. I'll agree that radio is probably not much better than this, but that doesn't say much.	Torchkas2	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UC9JkY1Ul_XR2T-AiFA3fbg	No	0	5	23.12.2016 02:16:32

008-4	In many ways I agree with you. Unsurprisingly I feel a little different a year after I wrote that. No, Steve did not put any "emotion" or "soul" into it. This is more like the musical equivalent to a Jackson Pollock or a Rorschach, where if done a million times "could" get a million different emotions out of you, the viewer. It's kinda like the old Sufi mystic proverb... "Who is the great sage who makes all the grass green." You, my friend, are the one who makes meaning out of it. 013	+lulubelle padieu each of speakers placed pointing upwards on the floor is connected to the microphone which hangs directly above it. As the microphone swings past the speaker it creates a feedback loop which produces the sound you hear, as the speaker swings away the loop is effectively broken and the sound stops. The longer a microphone spends directly above it's own speaker, the longer the feedback sound will be heard. 014	I hate stuff like this because it fetishises talentlessness and lack of effort. This isn't ground-breaking. This isn't interesting. This is literally 4 microphones just recording feedback. This is the opposite of art, its anti-art. Art should be an expression of effort and dedication to create something incredible, not to prove a point against "the man". This isn't even that, it just exists to because the dude could do it because he knew the right people and had a somewhat decent existing portfolio of work. And no - just because it pissed me off and got an "emotional response" from me doesn't justify its existence.	Welshhobo1	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCaN5tdVC90Z-mq7oURXwlRA	Yes	17	6	03.03.2015 15:47:13
014-01	What is wrong with anti-art? It is actively attempting to not be art, so why criticize it as art? That's completely missing the point.	ElGrandero	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCKbn-vqIGeEad7Bq4DJsn8Q	No	0	7	04.03.2015 23:28:59
014-02	"Art should be an expression of effort and dedication to create something incredible..." What you describe is more accurately referred to as "craft" rather than "art." The subjectivity of the label "incredible" doesn't help your statement either; art is fundamentally experiential, and so perhaps someone could have an "incredible" experience from this work.  It is also pertinent to note that a significant driving force in contemporary art was the early 20th C. concept of Dadaism, which is deliberately and fundamentally anti-art. This work is just an example of absolutism: the deliberate attempt to remove the normal artistic narrative and replace it with nonrepresentational-ism. 014-05	@Ben Webster This piece is talentless. I've listened to his other work and its mostly pretty good stuff. Listening to his other stuff is how I found this. This however, is trash. This is the Emperors new clothes.  People seem to have fallen into this scam wherein they believe "anti-art" is actually art. Its not. Its made to mock people who believe it is.  While expressionism began with good intentions and wonderful pieces being created, it also spawned its own devil - stuff like this. This doesn't evoke any emotions, this doesn't depict anything, this doesn't convey any message. Its not researchable, and its not education. Its Merda d'artista without the can. Its art for arts sake.  Anyone who believes they have found meaning in this is a philistine and moron. Not everything is art. 014-06	I don't think that any single person has the power to determine what is classified as true art. Art is different for every individual, and for you to dismiss things like this (and in the manner you dismissed it) is a bit intolerant in my opinion. I guess what I'm saying is you don't have to like it but I think it at least deserves respect. Not trying to be belligerent here honestly just stating my opinion.  And as to this having meaning? I think it totally does. It's a cool demonstration of some laws of nature along with how they can be used in a musical context. It's a joining of art and science, and I think any physicist would think it's great. 014-07	@Welshhobo1 dude! I always thought art was about SEEING rather than DOING or MAKING. You have to see first before you can make. This piece allows you to see something - it reveals something about the world that you might not have seen before. It enables the world to be an artist itself. 014-08	@Welshhobo1 Sorry to be irritating, but you... don't get it. It isn't meant to be 'anti-art' or there to 'prove a point against 'the man'" as you put it. If you took it in the context of it's time, and what was happening in the development of Western Art (WA)music directly before and at the time, this was simply a response to that - where was music meant to go after the 'pinnacle' of tonal music reached? Music began to be redefined - hence the development of atonality, serialism &amp; the Second Vienna School - as composers were pushing boundaries outside of the constraints of tonality to try and give WA music a future. Noise music was one of these developments. With development of audio tech and the increasing ability manipulate sounds electronically composers were able to explore these sorts of things. Of course this sort of work was going to happen. If you look at Reich's writings he acknowledges that it is pretty much impossible to be original, and he pretty much states he is simply trying to express an idea or view of music, the actual source of sound production is irrelevant to him (they are basically just a medium). Yeah, he might have been the right person with the right contacts, but are you seriously suggesting that every single piece of work is meant to be 'great' and/or agreeable to your (rather limited) concept of art? When it comes down to it, he's not actually asking you to enjoy it, just engage with it. Which you've done, remarkably well haha	Annabel Lovatt	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCkAXD8Zrd7sFLs92a5pDeFw	No	0	1	21.05.2015 13:33:23

014-10	Electronic music is just a term used to categorise some forms music, it doesn't mean it has no significance simply because it wasn't the first of its category. I couldn't care less whether you think it's 'talent-less' tbh, it's an exploration of a concept which falls in the realm of electronic music (or arguably, performance art). Get over yourself, must every work of art come up to your personal definition of art? Anyway, this will be my last reply - I can't really be bothered hitting my head against a brick wall in a futile effort to point out the blind arrogance of your stance. 021	Music is nothing but an art form whose medium is sound. If you say this isn't music, then there can be no music. Simply because there is no carefully considered choice of chords or words or rhythms does not make it any less viable than anything else. Instead of creating a finite, individual song, Reich's created an infinitely variable concept that can be played by literally anyone.  Isn't that simply stunning? Without any professional training, just a very basic explanation, you can play a piece of music that encompasses a highly advanced concept, that of chaos? The same goes for John Cage's "4.33" that I've seen mentioned below. That piece should never be "performed" by an individual, just showcased to a participating audience. This is still groundbreaking now, 57 years after its' creation. That says a lot. 063	Sounds very different from the recording I've heard. I guess things like the lengths of the cables, closeness to the speakers and a number of other factors can totally change the way this piece sounds.	Robert Wilks	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCAs1GjZgbKxTYouAmRWc_xA	Yes	6	170	07.06.2016 04:35:52

063-1	Robert Wilks The cable length doesn't really have much to do with the frequency that a mic feeds back (unless it's a really poor quality cable and then the noise piles up fast). Different mics and speakers all feed back at different frequencies regardless of the distance but they used the same speakers and mics for all four tones so I'm guessing it was intentionally EQed this way. 063-3	The length of the pendulum determines the period of its oscillation. The dimensions of the room and the distance from the microphone to the speaker affect the frequency of the feedback. As the angle that the pendulum moves through decreases, the period stays the same but the mic spends more time in proximity to the speaker. And then the doppler effect is what ultimately gives you that slide between pitches.  Sorry, I mostly wrote that for myself. This one sounds much different from the original because it looks like they took the time to do a lot of calculations in positioning everything so that the result would	John Renner	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCxC05i2VWCDVxz5hP-IEg4w	No	0	20	30.06.2017 18:17:41

063-6	@Kaila Lynch it's not really random because it's a pendulum so the sounds themselves after you hear the original frequency can set up an expectation for the remainder of the piece as you know they will get longer and closer together as the pendulum swings in smaller amounts. 132-1	Isso é algo experimental, provavelmente o cara nem ganhou mt dinheiro com isso e de qualquer forma se vc julga isso simples vai lá e tenta fazer o mesmo. Além disso a arte não morreu, ela se manifesta de varias maneiras, o gosto pra arte é subjetivo, gosto em relação a algo que é uma forma de expressão cultural, é um absurdo essa sua conclusão, primeiramente porque esse vídeo não representa toda a arte contemporânea já que essa não tem uma linha de tendências como a arte dos séculos passados. E outra é que você fala isso pela sua concepção do que seria uma boa arte, é uma opinião sua, você dizer que a arte esta morta por não seguir as tendências que você valoriza só demonstra etnocentrismo da sua parte, muito bom NPC. 205	The idea behind this piece (as many others of Reich) is that the creativity of the composer is no more in the sound result, but in the creation of a process; then the sound is just the result of the process itself... (here purely mechanic and without human intervention, in other pieces the process is played by the interpreters...but the idea is the same). This is a development to his extreme of an idea which is already present even in a Bach's fugue or in a Mozart's sonata... but now the process has take over the specific decisions of the composer and it has become itself "the composition" and the music is merely the "illustration" of a specific process to the listener... for this from performance to performance the music may change, but the process remains the same... This idea characterizes all minimal music but can be found also in other contemporary composers i. e. John Cage, etc... 213	Thanks for posting, I have never seen/heard this piece actually realised. Of the "famous" minimalists, Reich's pieces always seem the most elegantly thought-out, a perfect balance of form and content. Significant that he studied philosophy, perhaps? I'm perplexed that Welshhobo doesn't see the relation to Reich's later, more conventional, work. This is not about shocking or conning anyone. As others here point out, and as Reich's own essay suggests, it's music as a gradual process.	sound gravitation	http://www.youtube.com/channel/UCf0QbEKucBRDZnmJPnvarg	Yes	0	0	14.11.2018 17:49:04

371	Interesting random music experience. This type of «musique» brings us back perhaps to the origins of the very first musical creations of our distant ancestors. Up to a certain point, this type of sound material makes me think of «primitive» music, that said without pejorative intention, which musical ethnologists have made possible to make discover to the general public, through the intermediary of certain peoples who practice or had practiced this kind of music. It is perhaps a matter of updating the genesis of all music, up to ours. This being said, it is likely that I overstepped the composer's intention. It would have been relevant to know his point of view on this subject..
